Each season girls learn how to stand up for themselves and others and further develop their abilities to sympathize and empathize.

At Girls on the Run, girls have a safe and structured environment to get to know themselves better, make connections with others, and find a way to contribute positively to the world around them.

Dear Fellow Stakeholders,

Thanks to the incredible support from our community of donors, volunteers, sponsors, and families we were able to survive the difficult cancelation of our 2020 season and pivot to new programming options this fall and beyond! We managed the crisis in the spring with creativity and flexibility and continue to center our girls in our planning efforts. Just like our girls, we are feeling a lot of uncomfortable emotions in this uncertain time and need to rely on the tools we teach to help us through

At Girls on the Run, we teach girls about uncomfortable feelings and give them tools to help manage those emotions and difficult situations. Because they are navigating a lot of uncomfortable feelings these days, girls need connection and reassurance. Girls need skills and tools. Girls need laughter and movement. Girls need Girls on the Run.

Because of you, Girls on the Run will be here in the months and years to come to provide girls with the skills, support, and confidence they need. On behalf of the Girls on the Run of Snohomish County staff and board, thank you! We are grateful that you are part of our community."
